due to a MacArthur Foundation International Connections grant. In addition to its two staged readings, the local high school used the play as a Fall project. Students studied the play and attended presentations to deepen their understanding of the content, including a presentation by Silk Road Rising co-founders Jamil Khoury and Malik Gillani.

Silk Road Rising was honored by the US Consulate with a reception, as well as invited by the US Department of State to present on the intersections of faith, art, and social justice at a former church in the process of being converted into the Al Nour Mosque. Overall, our travels abroad were a fulfilling continuation of our work in Chicago.

Oh My Sweet Land Heads to London

Written by Palestinian playwright Amir Nizar Zuabi, Oh My Sweet Land tells the story of a Syrian woman and her lost lover, exploring the lives of refugees from Damascus, Aleppo, and beyond. Silk Road Rising has been invited to stage this piece at the Ismaili Center in London as part of London's Nour Festival, an arts festival dedicated to illuminating contemporary art and culture from the Middle East and North Africa. These performances are underwritten by the Aga Khan Museum and Ismail Centre London and will occur November 2nd and 3rd.
