Joining the Movement for Creative Aging

Silk Road Rising Hosts Teaching Artist Training Facilitated by Lifetime Arts

This past Tuesday, Silk Road Rising hosted a training workshop on creative aging led by Lifetime Arts, a New York based service organization that connects the people, funding, ideas, and strategies necessary to increase the number and quality of professional arts programs for older

Teaching artists from many different disciplines (visual arts, theatre, dance, and music) gathered at Garfield Park Conservatory to explore teaching methods, best practices, and advocacy needed for creative aging.

Creative Aging is an emerging field that explores and promotes the value of the arts in increasing quality of life for older adults. Learning new things, and especially learning new skills in artistic expression, can be the key to physical and emotional well being as we age. Art is always a personal and social act. By including people of all ages in art communities, we can help combat alienating forces like age-based discrimination.

Silk Road Rising is proud to be part of this movement that champions creative aging and raises awareness of its incredible impact on society as a whole. Lifetime Arts is an inspirational organization full of passionate people doing important and timely work. Learn more about them by clicking the link below!
