Dear <<First Name>>,

What shapes your community? What binds it together? What does community look like to you?

For Silk Road Rising, storytelling is at the core of our community. Stories survive in the mind long after the curtain falls. So what better way to explore the issues of greatest impact on our communities than the stories we share on our stage?

A simple glance at our 2013-14 season shows the diversity of our storytelling: With 3 productions and 5 staged readings we explored racial profiling, religious zealotry, refugees & global dislocation, domestic abuse, authoritarian rule, intersex identity, Syrian civil war, and drone warfare. It's not a catalog of many different stories—it's all the same story. All are facets of our 21st Century existence.

Through art, Silk Road Rising helps you explore and understand our complex world.

Our 2014-15 season kicks off this fall with Christopher Chen's award-winning THE HUNDRED FLOWERS PROJECT. Technologically complex and logistically demanding, Chen's is not an easy story to stage. Before rehearsals begin on September 15th, we need to raise $10,000 to secure the technical equipment needed to bring THE HUNDRED FLOWERS to life. Will you help?
