Rebuilding Syria Part 2: A Litany of No's

Syrians never accepted dictatorship as destiny, but what did they explicitly reject when they rose up against the Assad regime? In Part 2 of Rebuilding Syria, we examine the litany of no's articulated by the Syrian people, which ultimately led to the regime's demise.

In Conversation with Playwright Atra Asdou

Silk Road Cultural Center's Jamil Khoury speaks with Assyrian American theater artist, Atra Asdou, about her new play "Iraq, But Funny," premiering at Chicago's Lookingglass Theatre Company, May 29 - July 20, 2025.

The conversation also explores Assyrian identity in the diaspora, and a Who's Who of Assyrian American art makers.

Introducing Aryaa Organic

Jamil recently caught up with longtime friend, colleague, and collaborator, Kamal Hans, in our podcast studio to learn about Kamal's latest endeavor, Aryaa Organic.

Aryaa Organic is a health and wellness company rooted in Indian mysticism. Its creators draw strength and inspiration from the Aryavanshi lineage—a symbol of nobility, truth, and spiritual connection.

Food as medicine. Infused with intention. Designed for transformation.

Tune in to learn how one socially conscientious artist-entrepreneur is blending cultural, culinary, and ancestral knowledge to help change the world.
